

“ACE offers everything I seek in a professional development organization: relevant and engaging professional development activities; access to a network of expert colleagues; an open, collaborative and supportive atmosphere; and opportunities for peer review and recognition of my work.”

Jennifer Alexander — Oregon State University

In the fast-paced world of communication and information technology, staying on the cutting edge means slicing through change at record speed. Through its international network of communicators, educators, and information technologists, ACE members have access to learning opportunities that are sure to enhance professional success.